WHO'S WHO AND WHY AT THE VENERABLE COLLEGE OF WILLIAM & MARY

Something of the Great and Super-Great in These Parts. John Halpin Wright

In introducing J. H. Wright to you, kind readers, we would say that he is a beautiful (we use the word advisedly) boy, with sparkling eyes, azure hair, alluring smiles, and a limited vocabulary. He measures about five feet ten up, two feet across, one foot through and four feet around. Our first glimpse of him was on a certain occasion when he crossed the street to keep from meeting a young lady who smiled at him. Funny about that! Jack is always smiles himself. He smiles when any one speaks, and he smiles when everyone is quiet. This never-failing smile won for him the title of the handsomest man in college, and to show you that this smile is omnipresent: On a certain occasion after he had smashed through the line for ten yards, he got up, took out his vanity box, powdered his left eyebrow, nonchalantly smoothed a stray lock, announced "we've got to fight," and smiled.

Jack would go out for the track team, were it not for this ungentlemanly exposure, ye know. He has conquered this extreme modesty enough to don a basketball uniform, and, as with other things that he attempts, he has made a success of it.

Among novel ideas might be placed his manner of winning the favor of the Ducs in study hall by enveloping himself in a dime novel and allowing them to draw pictures on the blackboard without molestation. Another of his exploits is remarkable, in that, single-handed, he necessitated a special rule from the faculty about taking degrees. The truth will probably never be known, but it is thought that he was requiring so many degrees that the committee had to pass a law, forbidding any one man to take over twenty seven degrees in one year.

However that may be, we are mighty glad that you are coming back, Jack, because the college needs you.

Dr. Hamilton Holt, editor of the Independent, will deliver an address on the Peace movement in the chapel on Tuesday, March 4. at 8 p. m. A large crowd is expected to hear this distinguished journalist.

WHAT THE TEAM IS GOING TO DO:

(1) Defeat Randolph-Macon.
(2) Defeat Hampden-Sidney.

The William and Mary team displaying excellent form in passing and shooting defeated the Hampden-Sidney quint by a score of 43-14 last Saturday night.

The visitors, cheered on by Gus Malbert's dope of an easy victory, started with a rush and served a basket after a few seconds of rough play. The locals tightened up, checked the rush and played rings around the visitors for the rest of the game. William and Mary covered up so well that Hampden-Sidney was unable to use their signals to any advantage and contented themselves by shooting in the direction of the goals from all corners of the floor.

McClung, who seemed willing to foul and to use rough tactics, was injured in the last few minutes of play by running into the wall in an attempt to get the ball from Hubbard.

Corke, the Hampden-Sidney center, received a sprained ankle and exchanged positions with McClung, who repeatedly fouled Capt. Metcalf while the ball was put in play.

The Metcalf brothers showed superior form for William and Mary, while McClung was the best scorer for Hampden-Sidney.

COACH YOUNG OPTIMISTIC OVER PROSPECTS OF A WINNING BASEBALL TEAM

Majority of Last Year's Team Back and Excellent New Material to Draw From.

The opening of the 1913 baseball season is now at hand, and with the passing of each day the prospects of having a good ball team look brighter.

The battery candidates have been working out in the gym for the past four weeks with the results that they are now ready to begin hard work when the out-door season opens. The squad of in-door workers has been much larger than that of last year, there being nine pitchers and four catchers. Among the pitchers we have Shiers, the 'varsity man of last year's team, and also Jones and Winsbro of the second squad. Of these, Shiers is showing up well, having the best control of any one on the squad. The new men in the order of their respective abilities are Shackleford, Addington, Garnett, Hedrick, Sheshorse, and James. The catchers are Peachy, of last year's team, Zehmer, a member of the Academy team last year, and Coombs a new man who is showing up well; also Watts of the 1912 squad who suffered a broken leg in the early part of the season.

Of last year's team we have back Capt. Garth, Peachy, Games, Hubbard, Shiers, Jones and Addison.

On Monday, March 3, the out-door work will start, and it is expected that at least fifty men will report. With the example of the splendid showing made by the basketball team, I have high hopes that the men will understand what hard work and attention to what is told them will do, and that every man who reports will come out with the determination to make the team and help turn out a winner.

Dr. W. J. Young.

Mr. Robert Haden Shouffler, poet and essayist, spent Monday and Tuesday here, the guest of Dr. J. S. Wilson. Mr. Shouffler is a graduate of Princeton, and has won wide distinction in the field of literature. He has written a number of books, among which are a travel book on "Romantic Germany," a volume of poems, "Scum o' the Earth," and "Romantic America" which is now running as a serial in the Metropolitan. He is also a regular contributor to the Atlantic Monthly.

THE SUMMER SESSION

In another column will be found the advertisement of the William and Mary Summer Session and it gives us genuine pleasure to learn of the enlargement of the summer faculty and the broadening of the work that is promised for the coming term. Those of us who spent last summer among the mountains of Southwest Virginia can testify to the delightful climate of our summer home. Those of us who enjoyed the long afternoons of tennis, who witnessed the exciting baseball games, and who contested with arm and argument for the championship in horse-shoe pitching, know of the outdoor charms that the summer campus has to offer. Those of us who experienced the friendly, informal relations with the faculty, who felt the spirit of comradeship that pervaded the student-body, and who took part in the evening singings on the steps, have only the fondest recollections of the simple, pleasant life we lived at Dublin. And those of us who did summer work for our degrees know that the courses were of exactly the same degree of thoroughness as the courses given during the regular college year.

For a quarter of a century William and Mary has had the unique distinction of being the only institution of higher learning in America especially engaged in the training of men for educational careers. The summer term brings the especial advantages which the college has to offer within reach of the great army of Southern teachers who are occupied with their schools during the regular college months, and we favor its continuance on this account. But The Flat Hat has been an earnest advocate of the summer work because there are many of our own students who desire to complete courses during the summer that will bring them nearer to their degrees. To these, in particular, we commend the summer session. The editor has spied out the Southwest and it is a pleasant land. He has eaten of the apples of Dublin and they are good.

SENIOR PRIVILEGES

Every member, most probably, of the senior class has looked forward through three, four or five years of college life to the time when he would be a senior. He has imagined during all those days at least a small change in his position and relation toward the College; he has thought that certainly he would and should receive a little more of liberty and consideration from the College. Else, why a senior? Why any class organization? Why any legendary powers of guardianship and such rot?

After attaining unto the name of the desideratum, he has been disillusioned. Personally, we have not felt any change save a general "tightening up" on all sides. It certainly is good to know, and will be good always to feel that you have come through a more than standard B. A. course, toeing the mark absolutely from beginning to end, making higher percentages than are required, we believe, by any other institution in the state, etc., etc. We believe, however, that all this can be done otherwise; Lee was a better disciplinarian than Martinet. A concession here and there would not lessen this high respect, rather would it strengthen it.

Now, for what are we suggesting or contending? Most of us say optional chapel attendance; we would not say so, however. The seniors should have early examinations at Finals to know at least ten days before time whether or not they will be graduated. The muddle of last year is a classic example of the unfairness of our present system. Conditions in certain classes will be exactly similar this year unless a change be made.

Then, we think the student point of view should be considered through the senior class or some organization when questions pertaining to student life arise. A rule of the faculty that is not in the least approved of or supported by the student-body is calculated to do harm, not good.

We would further suggest that, on account of the high grade of work and the amount that each has to do, the great mass of "parallel" be lightened; we could even find time within the next thirty or forty years to get up on this work. We do not care for the idea of purchasing "extras;" they are inevitable in some classes, and our three dollars are scarce.

There are numerous others we could mention. We have explained our concept, however. Let's think about it, gentlemen, let's have a more harmonious, reasonable spirit of cooperation.

SPOTSWOOD MEETING

On last Wednesday evening the Spotswood Club was very delightfully entertained by Mr. "Jack"

Wright at the Theta Delta Chi House. There was a good attendance, and reports were made by Messrs. Games and Peachy. The club will meet next with Mr. Games at the Sigma Phi Epsilon House. A full attendance is desired, since it is very likely that some interesting questions will come up for discussion.

The Academy basketball team won its initial game by defeating the Nicholson High School team by a score of 17-12. Prichett and Gilliam were perhaps the stars for the Academy, while Lane and Geddy showed up best for the High School.

ON TO ASHLAND

This Friday night, February 28, the basketball team plays Randolph-Macon College, at Ashland. If William and Mary wins, the cup will be ours, since Saturday's defeat put Hampden-Sidney out of the race. It will be a game for blood, and while there is every reason to believe that we will beat them, as the last game resulted in a 42-26 victory the Yellow Jackets will fight hard. It is expected that a large number of rooters will accompany the team. There will be a block ticket. Get on it now and yell the siren song of triumph for the Orange and Black.

PROF. SHANNON TO SPEAK HERE

Pres. J. F. Barnes, with the assistance of Mr. Carl Bare, has arranged to have Prof. T. W. Shannon, of Marietta, Ohio, visit the local Y. M. C. A. next Thursday night and Friday. Prof. Shannon is making a tour of all the states east of the Mississippi river, and has included in his itinerary eighty-six colleges and universities. While here he will deliver anyway two addresses and probably more, the first one being on Thursday evening at 7 o'clock.

Prof. Shannon is one of the directors of the World's Federation for Purity, and is a recognized authority on Sex Hygiene and Social Problems. He has the very high endorsement of Dr. W. D. Weatherford and others prominent in Y. M. C. A. work. Of him the Charleston, (S. C.) Daily News says: "Several prominent doctors and representative men at the close of his lecture pronounced it the most chaste and scientific and helpful on the American platform."

It is to be hoped that all will avail themselves of the opportunity to hear Prof. Shannon's lectures.

SCHOOL FAIR CATALOGUE ISSUED

The catalogue of the Peninsula School Fair has been issued and sent to all the teachers and school officials of the Peninsula counties. The publication is very neatly gotten up, and contains all detailed information necessary for those wishing to compete in the various departments.
